

Scott Shaw

won the Pulitzer Prize for Spot News Photography in 1988 for a photograph of Jessica McClure being rescued after 58 hours of being trapped in an abandoned oil well. Scott was working the Odessa American in Texas at the time. The Illinois native has been a photographer at The Plain Dealer since 1990.

Chris Stephens

is a native of greater Cleveland. She studied visual communication at Ohio University and worked at newspapers in Willoughby, Ohio, Fort Wayne, Ind., and Norfolk, Va., before joining The Plain Dealer staff in 1982. She lives in Lakewood with her husband, Plain Dealer education writer Scott Stephens. They have three sons: Sam, Phil and Dan.

Lonnie Timmons III

became a professional photographer after studying art in Italy. After freelancing for several years, he was hired by the Miami Herald, where he worked for four years. A native of Baltimore, Lonnie has been with The Plain Dealer since 1998. Recently, he joined a small group of photographers who shoot video for the newspaper's web site.

Peggy Turbett

joined The Plain Dealer as a picture editor in 2000 but for the past three years has added photography to her responsibilities. In addition, Peggy has turned a life-long love of travel into a series of published articles and photo exhibitions. A native of Lorain, Ohio, Peggy studied foreign languages at Antioch College in Yellow Springs, Ohio. She holds master degrees in international affairs from Columbia University, New York, and in journalism/visual communication from Ohio University.

The photojournalists at The Plain Dealer are the eyes of the community. They document the news, events and people of Northeast Ohio, offering moments in time that inform and captivate. Their photographs strive to provide insights that are textured, engaging and timeless.

Functioning as the visual reporters of the newspaper, Plain Dealer photographers find themselves in every corner of greater Cleveland. Their photographs are often the story's emotional touchstone, providing an added dimension that touches the viewer and makes a connection.

David I. Andersen

has been a staff photographer at The Plain Dealer since 1979. During his career at The PD, Dave has received many awards, including Ohio Photographer of the Year. In 2007, he put down his still cameras and began shooting video exclusively. He is a graduate of Kent State University.

Tracy Boulian

joined the newspaper a year ago and is the newest member of The Plain Dealer photography staff. Before coming to Cleveland, she worked at the Naples Daily News in south Florida. Originally from Connecticut, Tracy is a 2005 graduate of the Tisch School of the Arts at New York University where she studied photography, anthropology and sociology. She was an intern at The Plain Dealer in 2005.

Gus Chan

has worked in his native Cleveland for the past 17 years. During that time his greatest enjoyment has come from documenting life in his hometown. This year, Gus was named Best Photographer in Ohio by the Associated Press. He and reporter Rachel Dissell also won the Columbia University Dart Award for Excellence in Coverage of Trauma for their series "Johanna: Facing Forward."

Chuck Crow

has been with The Plain Dealer since 1995. In addition to general assignment photography, Chuck has covered the Cleveland Indians for the past 8 years and is arguably one of the best baseball photographers in the country. He is a graduate of Miami University and lives in Mentor with his wife, Terry, and their children Catherine and Max.

Lisa DeJong

has been a staff photographer for The Plain Dealer since March of 2007. She also has worked at the Flint Journal, St. Petersburg Times and the Muskegon Chronicle. Lisa was runner-up photographer of the year for Ohio in 2008 and also has received accolades from Pictures of the Year International, the National Press Photographers Association, Atlanta Photojournalism, Associate Press and Women in Communications.

Marvin Fong

is a native of Northern California and came to work in Ohio in 1994 as an intern and staff photographer for the Dayton Daily News. He has been with The Plain Dealer for the past 10 years. Marvin has a bachelor's degree in media communications from California State University of Sacramento.

Joshua Gunter

a native of Indiana, graduated from Ball State University in 2000 with a degree in photojournalism and graphic journalism. After completing an internship at The Plain Dealer in the summer of 2000, he was hired as a staff photographer in 2002. Gunter now resides in Lakewood with his wife, Heather, and son, Reid.

Roadell Hickman

a 1987 graduate of the University of Kansas with a bachelor's degree in photojournalism, has been a staff photographer at The Plain Dealer since 1988. Before joining The Plain Dealer, he had internships at various newspapers, including the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Fort Lauderdale News-Sun Sentinel, Grand Rapids Press and The Plain Dealer. He has won a number of awards for outstanding photography and has covered a variety of assignments, including the World Series and NBA Finals.

Lynn Ischay

has been a photojournalist for 30 years, working as a general assignment photographer at various publications throughout Ohio. She was a stringer for United Press International and The Cleveland Press and a staff photographer for the News Herald and the Columbus Dispatch. A native of Cleveland, Lynn has been with The Plain Dealer for 10 years.

John Kuntz

has been Ohio Photographer of the Year twice in the past four years. He began his photojournalism career in Cleveland as a freelancer and worked for Reuters in Atlanta for eight years before coming to The Plain Dealer in 1998. He has covered a variety of news and sporting events including hurricanes, the Oklahoma City bombing, several World Series, NBA Finals, Super Bowls, both the summer and winter Olympics and The Final Four.

Dale Omori

a two-time Ohio Photographer of the Year winner, came to The Plain Dealer in 1989. He's also been a staff photographer at The Cincinnati Post and the Kettering-Oakwood Times in Kettering, Ohio. In 2007, after more than 20 years of shooting still pictures, Dale switched to shooting video. He is currently The Plain Dealer's deputy director of photography for multimedia.

Thomas Ondrey

is a native Clevelander and has been a staff photographer at The Plain Dealer since 2004. He has worked for newspapers in Pittsburgh, Stamford, Conn., Biddeford, Maine, and Kettering, Ohio. Tom graduated from Harvard College and also attended the masters in journalism program at Ohio University. In addition to his photography, Tom paints Ohio landscapes in watercolors and pastels.

Brynne Shaw

has worked at The Plain Dealer since 1991. Before coming to Cleveland, she was a photographer at the St. Louis Sun and the Morristown Daily Record. She has won numerous awards from the National Press Photographers Association, Ohio News Photographers Association, The Press Club of Cleveland and The Associated Press. Brynne attended Rutgers University in New Jersey, where she was born.
